5 Source A: Comparison Websites

It is very expensive to run both a car and a home. With 10 million users a year, online comparison websites have become a very popular way of helping consumers compare the market for energy suppliers and insurance products.

Energy and insurance companies constantly review and change their tariffs and charges. Consumers should also be analysing whether they have the best deal and getting the best value for money.

Many consumers sign up to energy or insurance providers and stick with that provider for a long time as they don't want the hassle of changing providers. This could cost the consumer hundreds of pounds per year.

Read the information carefully in Source A to answer part (a) of the question below.

- (a) Using the information in the Source and your own knowledge analyse the benefits of using price comparison sites. [6 marks]
