Young People's Attitudes

Young people are very aware of how important image is in their lives. For example, image may reflect an aspect of a young person's personality by belonging to a particular group identity by the clothes they wear.

Some young people's self-esteem may be affected by sexual orientation and the effects may be long lasting. Some young people are very confident about their sexual orientation and are happy with who they are.

The media such as television, radio and magazines has helped shape the attitudes and behaviour of young people, including their views on relationships. Some examples include the role of celebrities, young people's television programmes and models in magazines.
